

International Society of Sustainability Professionals

Are you passionate about making the world a more sustainable place, economically, socially, and environmentally? Are you helping organizations and communities of all types integrate sustainability culture and practices throughout business operations and personal actions?

Regardless of the type of business you work for or the job title you have, if you spend 25% or more of your time helping to make the world more sustainable, YOU are a sustainability professional.

Be recognized for your knowledge, skills and abilities. Earn an ISSSP sustainability professional credential!

AN ISSSP CREDENTIAL WILL SIGNAL TO THE WORLD THAT YOU...

- Understand and can communicate sustainability topics to diverse audiences
- Are abreast of the most current sustainability issues, tools, and techniques
- Are able to:
 - Apply systems thinking in developing sustainability solutions
 - Assess sustainability risks and opportunities in any organization, community, or industry worldwide
 - Plan, implement, and evaluate the integration of sustainability into organizational culture, processes, programs, and results

WHY GET CREDENTIALIAED?

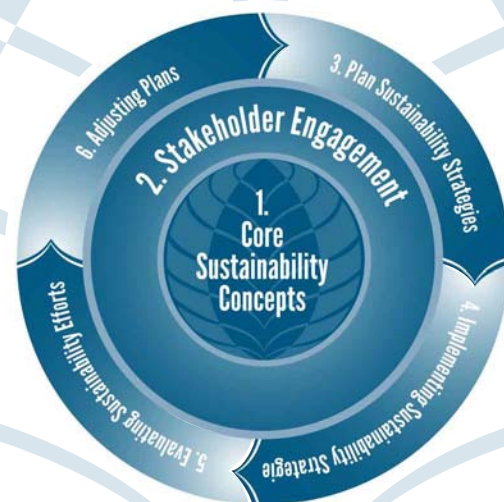

The world of work is changing and certifications are becoming increasingly important in today's competitive workforce. The sustainability field is no exception. A professional credential shows employers, clients, and peers that you are well qualified and serious about your career. A professional credential is a stamp of excellence that can help you get hired and earn more.

Regardless of whether you are a recent graduate, changing fields, or a longtime professional, one of ISSSP's overarching and rigorous sustainability credentials will meet your needs.

WHICH ISSSP CREDENTIAL IS RIGHT FOR ME?

ISSSP's credentials are based on years of research by hundreds of sustainability professionals and organizations to define the core competencies required to be effective in the field. The research shows that six domains define the acumen required of sustainability professionals.

- ISSP Sustainability Associate (ISSP-SA):
For individuals who are new to sustainability or those in allied professions who show they have a solid grasp in Sustainability Domain 1
- ISSP Certified Sustainability Professional (ISSP-CSP):
For veteran professionals with 5+ years of experience working in the sustainability field who can also demonstrate professional excellence in the Sustainability Domains 2-6

“For anyone looking to appeal to a prospective employer or client, [an ISSP credential is] a great way to differentiate yourself and communicate that your background is amongst the international standards.”

Jonathan Gregory
 ISSP-SA, Conservation Program Coordinator, City of Denton Texas, USA

“Unlike a certificate or degree, a credential requires continuing education and active engagement with peers in your field which ensures you remain at the top of your field and regularly enhancing your skills. Of all my professional designations, attaining the ISSP-CSP has been the most rewarding.”

Tanis Marquette
 ISSP-CSP, Global Sustainability Leader, Hexion, USA

“As sustainability becomes increasingly important to businesses and institutions, there’s a critical need for professionals capable of showing the way. ISSP’s Certification is exactly what’s needed to provide the insight and expertise these individuals need to succeed.”

Joel Makower
 Chairman & Executive Editor, Greenbiz Group
